On behalf of The Polymer Society, Taipei (PST), I would like to extend our warmest congratulations to The Polymer Society of Korea (PSK) on the celebration of its 50th anniversary.

Over the past five decades, The Polymer Society of Korea has demonstrated outstanding leadership in advancing polymer science and engineering through excellent research, innovation, education, and strong engagement with industry. Its contributions have significantly influenced the development of materials science in Korea, Asia, and the global community.

We deeply value the long-standing friendship and close academic exchanges between Korea and Taiwan. In recent years, interactions between the two polymer communities have become increasingly active and fruitful. Our societies have continuously strengthened mutual cooperation, and every year, the two societies send delegates to participate in each other's annual meetings. These regular exchanges have promoted meaningful scientific dialogue, strengthened collaborative research opportunities, and further reinforced the strong relationship between our societies.

As the world faces important challenges in sustainability, energy, healthcare, and advanced manufacturing, polymer science will continue to play a vital role. I am confident that The Polymer Society of Korea will remain at the forefront of innovation and continue to inspire future generations of scientists and engineers.

Please accept our heartfelt congratulations on this golden anniversary. We wish your society continued growth, success, and international impact in the decades ahead.
