Dear Colleagues and Friends at the Polymer Society of Korea (PSK),

On behalf of the American Chemical Society (ACS) Division of Polymeric Materials: Science and Engineering (PMSE), it is a profound honor to extend our warmest congratulations to the Polymer Society of Korea on the historic occasion of your 50th anniversary.

Reaching a golden jubilee is a magnificent testament to the vision, dedication, and scientific stewardship of your members. Since its inception in 1976, PSK has evolved into a cornerstone of the international scientific community. Your society has not only championed the growth of polymer science within Korea but has also served as a vital engine for global innovation that has fundamentally shaped the modern world.

The relationship between PMSE and PSK is one we hold in high regard. It is a partnership built on a shared language of discovery and a mutual commitment to excellence. The vibrant exchange of ideas between our two organizations and our members—facilitated through joint symposia and collaborative research—has enriched the global polymer landscape.

As you celebrate five decades of remarkable achievement, we look forward to the next chapter of our continued friendship. May the Polymer Society of Korea continue to thrive, innovate, and lead the way toward a more sustainable and technologically advanced future.

With deepest respect and warmest wishes for your continued success over the next fifty years and beyond.

Sincerely,

Jennifer L. Schaefer
